Honor a Colleague—Submit a Nomination for the 2007 Awards

AACC International is proud of its members’ many accomplishments that have advanced the association and the field of grain science. Help us recognize these individuals by nominating a fellow colleague to receive a prestigious AACC International award. All members are strongly encouraged to submit nominations for these awards at anytime. Descriptions for the various awards and deadlines for nominations are listed below. Previous award winners and details are listed on AACCnet at www.aaccnet.org/membership/awards.asp. To nominate someone for an award, send their contact information and your contact information, as well as a summary of the nominee’s career, accomplishments, and contributions, to Linda Schmitt at AACC International headquarters. Supporting letter, curriculum vitae, and list of publications are also welcome.

AACC International Fellows

The AACC International Board of Directors established a Fellows Program in 1985 to honor association members who have made distinguished contributions to the field of grain science and technology in research, industrial achievement, leadership, education, administration, communication, or regulatory affairs. Any member who has made such a contribution and who has been a member for at least 10 years is eligible. Recipients of the Thomas Burr Osborne Medal are also accorded AACC International Fellow status. Nominations due January 1, 2007.

Alsberg-French-Schoch Memorial Lectureship

The Alsberg-French-Schoch Memorial Lectureship was established in 1965 to honor chemists who have made distinguished contributions to fundamental starch science. Established by the Corn Refiners Association with a grant to AACC International for its administration, the award includes a plaque and honorarium. Nominations due June 1, 2007.

Edith A. Christensen Award

In recognition of the central role that analytical methodology and approved methods have played in the history of AACC International and their future importance, the Edith A. Christensen Award for Outstanding Contributions in Analytical Methodology recognizes scientific contributions in analytical methodology, and service to the society through approved methods leadership. The award will consist of a $1,000 honorarium and a plaque. Nominations due January 1, 2007.

Excellence in Teaching Award

The Excellence in Teaching Award was created to honor outstanding teaching contributions in the broad field of grain science and technology. This award and $1,500 honorarium is presented to a member who is currently teaching. Nominations due January 1, 2007.

Young Scientist Research Award

The AACC International Young Scientist Research Award is presented to an individual for outstanding contributions in basic and applied research to cereal science with the expectation that contributions will continue. Nominees must be no older than 40 years by June 1 of the year the award is sought, but nominations of younger scientists are particularly encouraged. Achievements will be considered in relation to the age and experience of the nominee. The recipient will receive a $1,000 honorarium, a plaque, and will be encouraged to present a lecture at the AACC International meeting of the year in which the award is given. Nominations due January 1, 2007.

In addition to the above awards, AACC International is accepting nominations for the following awards to be presented at the 2008 annual meeting. Previous award winners and award descriptions can be found on AACCnet.
